Dear Professor Gutmann:

How nice it was to hear from you again. I still have the fondest recollections of the colloquium and I still have the volumes of the Principia Mathematica that you encouraged (?) me to peruse. In fact my tastes still run in a Leibnizian vein as may be revealed somewhat vaguely by the enclosure.

I would certainly be delighted to have the chance to see you again and will keep your invitation in mind. I doubt if it will be feasible before I move to New York City early in September.

I hear very good things of you from our mutual friends and hope to reinforce that with more personal encounters in the not too distant future.

Yours sincerely,

JL/gel
